

Student Satisfaction Survey (19-20)

Admission Process

Analysis: The majority of respondents view the admissions process positively, with a significant portion rating it as either excellent or good. However, there are still concerns highlighted by some respondents, with a notable percentage rating it as fair or in need of improvement. Addressing these concerns could involve enhancing transparency, fairness, and user-friendliness while aligning the process more closely with the institution's values and goals.

Action Taken:

Simplify application forms and requirements to reduce confusion and make the process more accessible. The admission committee decided to simplify the language be used in forms for providing a criterion

Teaching Quality

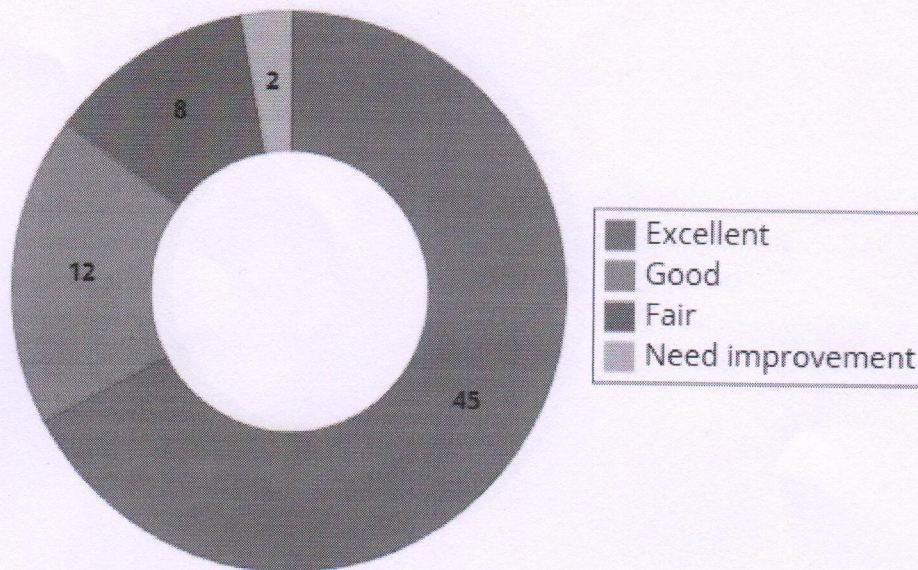

Analysis: It is evident that a majority of the respondents rated the teaching quality as excellent, which is a positive sign. This suggests that the teaching methods, communication, and effectiveness of the instructors are highly regarded by the majority of the respondents. The percentage of respondents who rated the teaching quality as good is also significant, indicating a generally positive perception of the teaching standards. This suggests that while not all aspects may be perfect, they are still considered above average. Overall, the majority of respondents view the teaching quality positively, but it's crucial to continuously strive for improvement to ensure that all students receive the best possible education.

Action Taken:

Teachers are encouraged to participate in different faculty development programs (FDP) approved by UGC or similar bodies to enhance their teaching skills, incorporate new pedagogical approaches, and stay updated with the latest educational trends and technologies.

Syllabus Completion

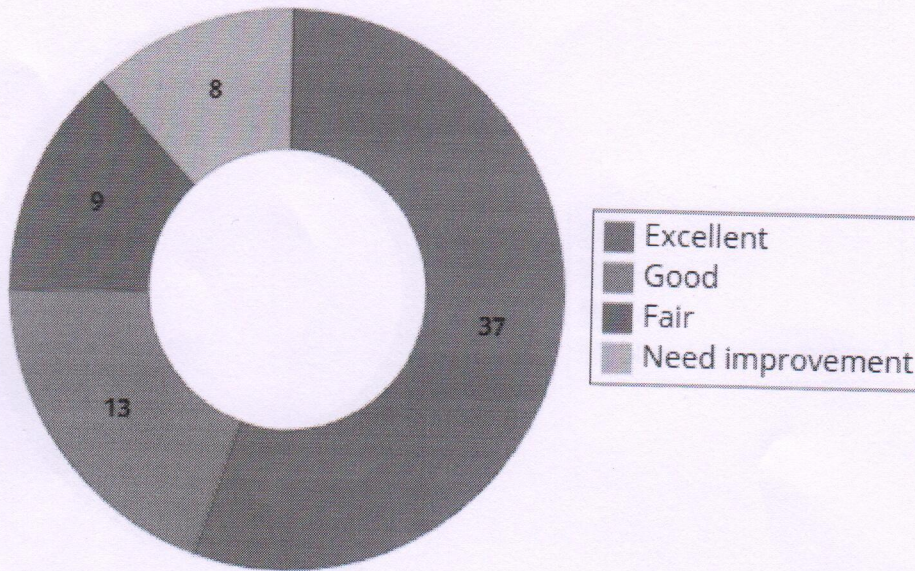

Analysis: Based on the given breakdown, the majority of the syllabus has been covered satisfactorily. Only about 3% is categorized as needing improvement, implying that there are specific areas where more attention and effort are required to meet the expected standards. Overall, this breakdown indicates a generally positive progress in syllabus completion, with the majority of it falling under the "Excellent" and "Good" categories. However, there are still areas identified for improvement, which should be addressed to ensure comprehensive coverage of the syllabus.

Action Taken:

Offer additional instruction or tutorials: Schedule extra classes, tutorials, or study sessions focused on the topics that need improvement. This allows students to receive personalized attention and clarification on challenging concepts.

Library Service

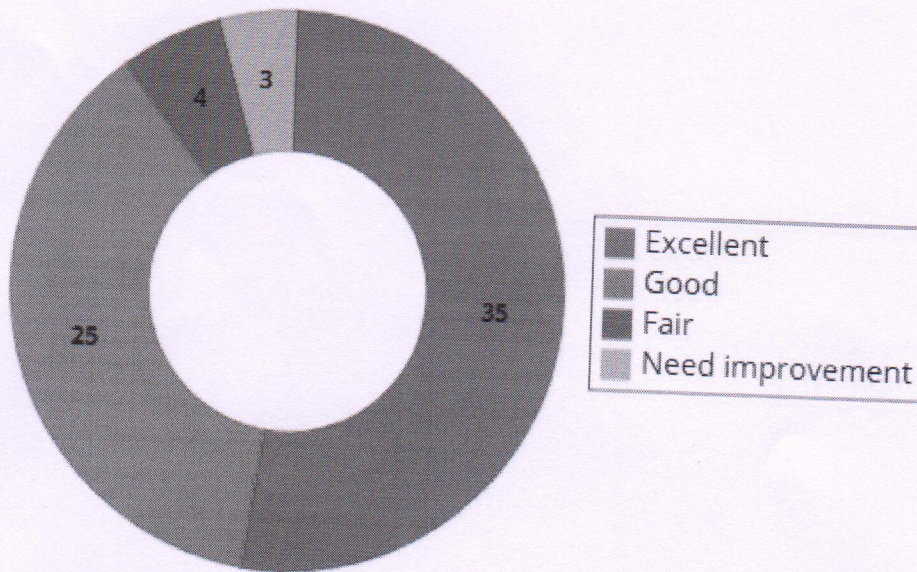

Analysis: Overall, while the majority of users rate the library service positively, there is still room for improvement, as indicated by some respondents. Addressing the concerns and suggestions of these users can help the library enhance its services and better meet the needs of its diverse user base. There is a notable minority of users who find the library service average or mediocre. It may imply that there are areas where the service could be improved to better meet user expectations or address certain shortcomings.

Action taken:

Implementing a consistent schedule for pesticide application to control pests and ensure the preservation of books in library collections. Additionally, offering bookbinding services to repair damaged books and extend their lifespan.

Co Curricular Activities

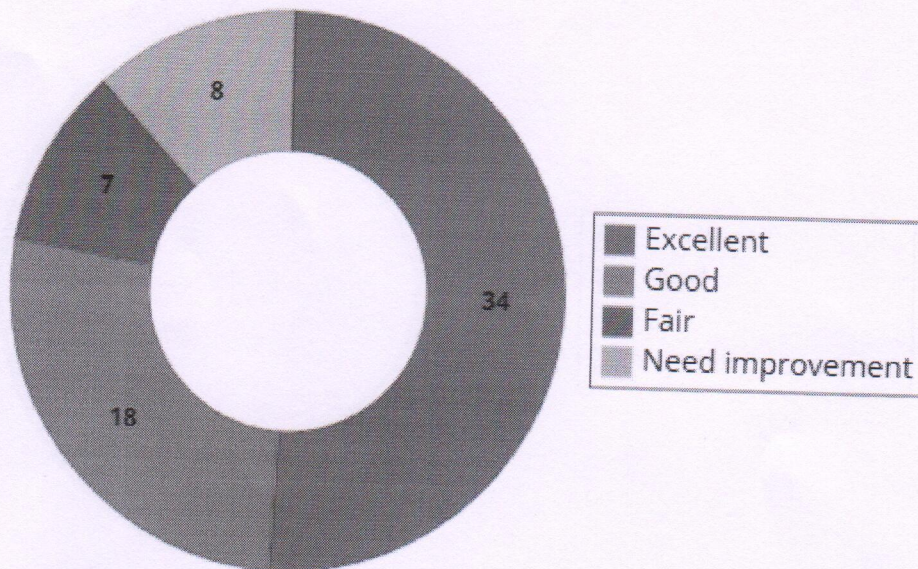

The breakdown indicates that most respondents perceive the scope of cultural and other activities as excellent, signifying a robust and diverse cultural scene with ample opportunities for engagement. However, a significant portion also rates it as fair, suggesting some room for improvement. While the high percentage of excellent ratings reflects overall satisfaction, attention should be paid to the minority who believe there is a need for enhancement. Overall, the analysis underscores the strengths and potential areas for growth within the cultural landscape, emphasizing the importance of continual assessment and refinement.

Action Taken:

Organize cultural competitions, festivals, or showcases where students can display their cultural talents, creativity, and knowledge. These events can include music and dance competitions, and cultural exhibitions that engage and inspire participation from the college community.

Hygiene and Basic Amenities

A majority of the respondents have rated the hygiene and basic amenities as good, indicating that the standards are generally high and satisfactory. However, there is still a notable portion of responses in the "need improvement" category, suggesting that there are areas where enhancements are necessary to ensure adequate hygiene and provision of basic amenities.

Action Taken:

Implement regular cleaning schedules for public spaces, including streets, parks, and public transportation.

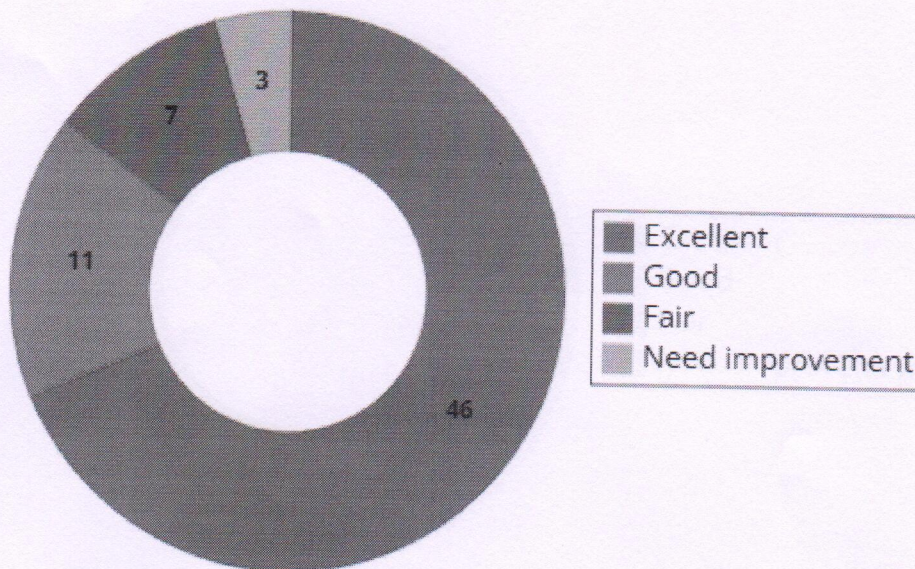

Provide adequate waste bins and establish waste collection systems to prevent littering and promote proper waste disposal.

Conduct routine maintenance of amenities such as canteen and common rooms.

Ensure universal access to clean and safe drinking water through the provision of public water fountains, tap stands, or water purification systems.

Placement Facilities

This breakdown suggests that a significant majority of job placements are rated as excellent, indicating a strong and effective system in place for connecting individuals with employment opportunities. The good rating also suggests that there are additional decent options available for job seekers.

However, it's worth noting that there is still a portion, albeit small, that falls under the "need improvement" category. This could indicate areas where the job placement process could be refined or expanded upon to better serve all individuals seeking employment opportunities.

Action Taken:

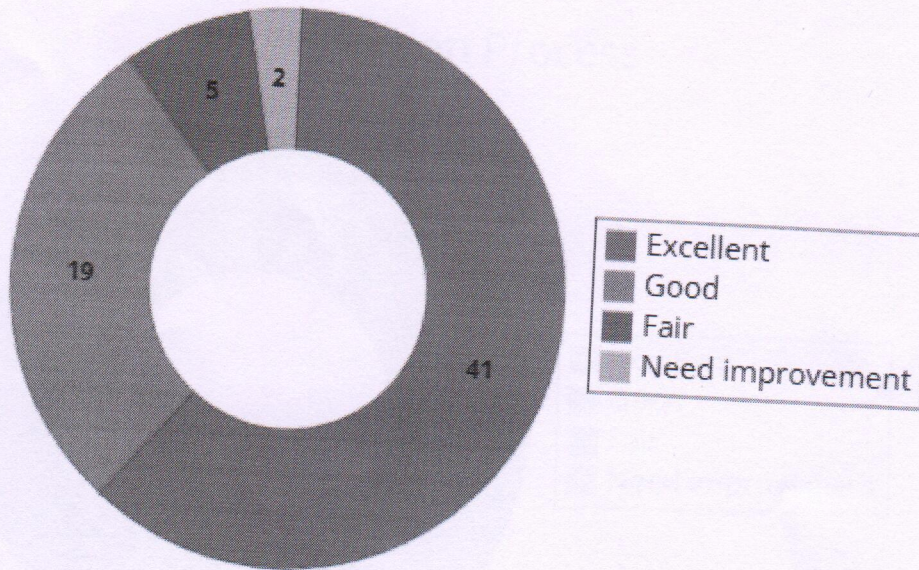

Increase awareness about the services offered by the job placement cell among students through orientation sessions, posters, and announcements during college events and through Internet.

Establish a peer mentoring program where senior students guide and support juniors in navigating the job search process, sharing their experiences and offering advice.

Build and maintain a database of alumni who are willing to mentor and assist current students in their job search endeavours.

Overall Perception

The majority of respondents rated the college as excellent, indicating a strong and positive perception overall. Additionally, a significant portion rated it as good, suggesting that there are many positive aspects to the college experience.

However, it's essential to acknowledge the smaller percentages in the fair and need improvement categories. While these percentages are relatively low, they still represent areas where the college may have room for enhancement. It's crucial to investigate the specific aspects of the college experience that respondents believe need improvement to address any underlying issues.

Action Taken:

Strengthen student support services, including academic advising, counselling, tutoring, and career guidance. Provide comprehensive support systems to help students succeed academically, personally, and professionally.

Upgrade and maintain campus facilities and infrastructure to create a conducive learning environment. Address any deficiencies or issues related to classrooms, laboratories, libraries, recreational spaces, and IT infrastructure.
